

Murphy's Laws

General law: If anything can go wrong, it will.

About communication: If a message can be interpreted in several ways, it will be interpreted in a manner that maximizes the damage.

About health: The more minor the procedure the more likely it is to go wrong.

About cell phones: Your cell phone always fall on the hardest part of the ground.

About printers: The printer is either out of toner or there is no paper only when the client asks for 10 copies of a 120 page report by evening.

About alarm clocks: Whenever you have something important to do the next morning, the alarm will never go off.

About copiers: The legibility of a copy is inversely proportional to its importance.

About computers: Any cool program always requires more memory than you have.

About love: If the person isn't taken, there's a reason.
